ABSTRACT

One hundred sixty-eight books, articles, and dissertations written between 1960 and 1973 are listed in this bibliography of linguistic studies of the Spanish language within the grammatical theory originated by Noam Chomsky in his "Syntactic Structures" (1957). The present work is divided into two general categories: (1) phonology and (2) syntax and semantics. The major portion of the bibliography is devoted to works on syntax and semantics. Information regarding the location of reviews and abstracts is contained within brackets following the appropriate entry. A list of additional bibliographies related to the field of generative-transformational grammar, a list of works consulted, and pertinent abbreviations are included. (PM)

A Bibliography of Generative-Based Grammatical Analyses of Spanish

This bibliography seeks to present a comprehensive and unified collection of bibliographical entries of linguistic studies of the Spanish language within the grammatical theory originated by Noam Chomsky in his Syntactic Structures (1957) and its subsequent modification by his disciples.

The present paper is the result of extensive research related to my duties as bibliographer of Spanish and Portuguese since 1967 for the Comparative Romance Linguistic Newsletter as well as related personal research. The entries were obtained from the holdings of several major Midwestern libraries.

The present bibliography is divided into two general categories: Phonology and Syntax and Semantics. The entries are alphabetical by author. In the case of multiple entries for one author, the entries are chronological and the titles are alphabetized by year. Reviews and abstracts are chronological and alphabetized by year. Reviews, abstracts and related information are contained within brackets and follow the appropriate entry. Abbreviations follow those established by the Modern Language Association Bibliography where available.

Of interest is the fact that most early entries (1960-1965) were phonological in nature and constitute 68 entries. The trend from 1966 to present seems to be in the field of syntax and semantics. These studies have begun to predominate and represent 100 entries.

In what follows are contained additional biliographies related to the field of generative-transformational grammar and a master list of works consulted and pertinent abbreviations.
